

PRESENTATIONS

I am available to share 'all things workplace conflict'

Reading, whether on the net or from a printed page, or even watching video clips, is never the same as Interacting 'live'.

My talks are really discussions preceded by one concept presented at a time.

Let's talk !

I design each presentation to suit the audience because every audience is different. This applies In particular to presentations to single organisations. It requires a good understanding of needs, wants, and concerns, together with insight on how conflict matters are being done currently; what works and what doesn't.

I tend not to try and get everything in to one session because there's too much. The idea is to keep it simple and short with follow up sessions if and as needed.

Whether it's for your organisation or an interested group, please contact me to discuss the best fit applicable.

The presentations are underpinned by enthusiasm and passion for the subject.
